

4th GRADE NEWSLETTER MAY 20, 2018

Dear Parents:

This is a normal week with no special activities which will be nice for completing work. I have quite a few grades to enter again in Power School and hope to do so on Monday. I will then let the students know of any missing work. We're down to three weeks, which will fly by! This is what we're working on:

Math: We have finished the units on decimals and fractions. We will work on geometry concepts including points, lines, angles, and circles until the end of the year. I'm very happy with the number of skills we covered this year.

Religion: The next chapter is on respect for creation. Our last religion test will be on Friday. We will just read through some of the remaining chapters in the book until the end of school.

English: We are still working on different types of verbs and there will be another test on the next sections on Thursday. We'll finish this chapter but this will be the last test.

Reading: We're working our way through Charlotte's Web and doing different written projects along the way. I will be sending home some pink paper for the students to make a cover for their booklet. This will be due on Wednesday, May 30th.

Social Studies: We will finish the chapter on the Southwestern states this week including filling in the four states and the capitals on a map. The test will be on Wednesday. We will then read through the chapter on the Western states which will complete our tour of all 50 states.

Greenfield Village: All of the forms and money is turned in. We have nine or ten chaperones for the day which is great! We will be sending home more detailed information soon.

We will have an assembly about the Monroe County Library System programs and we also have Field Day the last week of school.

Water bottles with ice: Please remember to bring these to school on hot days.

The secret phrase is "3 weeks." The countdown begins!
